New York, Oct. 17.—The state rested its case today in the trial of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker on the charge of instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler.

The case for the defense will begin tomorrow, when John W. Hart, of Becker's counsel, will make his opening address. If Becker has his way, Hart said, he will go on the stand in his own behalf. Whether his counsel will attempt to dissuade him had not been determined tonight.

The defense has indicated it will endeavor to prove a clique of gamblers inspired the murder of Rosenthal, and that Becker is the victim of a conspiracy.

Jerome To Be Witness.

Former District Attorney Jerome will be one of a dozen or more witnesses the defense plans to call. Mr. Jerome is expected by Becker's counsel to break down the portion of the testimony of Jack Rose including an alleged telephone conversation with Becker, indicate by the state to show that Becker had guilty knowledge of the crime.

Sam Paul, whose gambling place was frequently raided by Becker, and other members of the gambling fraternity also are included among Becker's witnesses.

Becker Confident.

The accused police lieutenant expressed himself as confident of acquittal after adjournment had been taken on the announcement of District Attorney Whitman that the people's case was complete.

Becker was in a happy mood, for his counsel had just won a victory. This was when Justice Goff granted a new trial by Mr. McIntyre that there be added all testimony tending to show that Becker had amassed a fortune in graft obtained from gamblers.

Bank Tellers Present.

District Attorney Whitman had thirteen bank tellers ready to swear that Becker had a number of bank accounts, but not one was allowed to testify. Justice Goff upheld Mr. McIntyre's argument that without proof that Rosenthal, the "squalor," knew that Becker's bank account represented the proceeds of graft, the evidence could not show that they constituted a motive for the killing of Rosenthal.

Bribery Not Charged.

"Extortion and bribery are not charged in this indictment," declared Becker's attorney. "The charge is solely that of murder."

To introduce proof, the prosecution recalled to the stand Jack Rose, Becker's alleged collector of graft, but Justice Goff refused to permit him to be examined on this line.

Mrs. Rosenberg on Stand.

Mrs. Lillian Rosenberg, wife of "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, was charged with the actual slaying of Rosenthal, furnished one of the sensations of today's proceedings, when she appeared as a state's witness.

Although denying any knowledge of her husband's whereabouts on the night of the murder, Mrs. Rosenberg told of the visit of Sam Schepps and Jack Rose to her home to ask the aid of her husband in getting Jack Zelig, the gang leader, out of jail.

Mrs. Rosenberg was one of a dozen witnesses put on the stand by the state today to close up some of the loose ends of its case, which has taken seven days to complete.

The only appearance of the four gunmen in the case, so far, has been when they were brought into court to be identified by witnesses. As the quarrel is under indictment and will be tried apart from Becker it is not expected they will be called to the stand in this trial.

Telephone Operator First Witness.

John F. Carney, a telephone operator, was the first witness called by the state today.

Carney said that he was on duty the night of the Rosenthal murder. From a record of calls made that night he identified one made at 2:37 a. m. July 18.

"What call was that?" asked Assistant District Attorney Moss.

"To this question the witness was requested to withhold his answer for the moment to enable Mr. Hart for the defense to cross examine him to determine if his memory was really refreshed by the record of telephone calls, or whether he depended on the record solely."

"If it weren't for that record, you could not recall a single number on it, could you?" Mr. Hart asked.

"Yes," Mr. Carney answered.

"I don't believe I could," Carney replied.

Mr. Hart sat down after objecting to further testimony from the witness.

"What connection did you make at 2:37 a. m.?" asked Mr. Moss.

"Audubon 6624."

"Did you disconnect the call afterwards?"

"Yes."

The number is that of Becker's house telephone and the time corresponds to that at which Jack Rose testified he telephoned to Becker apprising him that "the job had been done."

The next witness, Lucius Haywood, a

Alarmed Over Americans' Danger in Mexico, U. S. Rushes Forces to Rescue

Washington, Oct. 17.—Officials here became thoroughly alarmed today over the imminent danger to Americans in Vera Cruz, Mexico, taken over Wednesday by rebels, and Secretary of War Woodrow Wilson, acting secretary of the navy, ordered the cruiser Des Moines, now making a tour of Mexican ports, to return to Vera Cruz.

Commander Hughes will have full power to exercise his own discretion in safeguarding Americans in the beleaguered city and without further instructions can land a party if conditions warrant.

The Des Moines has 279 bluejackets aboard, but carries no marines. She left Vera Cruz ten days ago and will arrive at Progreso tonight. She will return with all speed to Vera Cruz, about 450 miles to the southwest, across the bay of Campeche.

Although messages to the state department confirming the surrender of Vera Cruz to General Felix Diaz report that the city is quiet, officials realize the perilous position Americans and other foreigners would find themselves in should the Mexican federal forces attempt to recapture the capital seaport.

Reports out of Mexico City today said the movement, of which General Diaz is the master spirit, has attracted widespread sympathy. Confirmation also has been received here of the introduction of a bill in the Mexican chamber of deputies calling for the immediate resignation of the present cabinet.

Critical Point Reached in Mexico.

Mexico City, Oct. 17.—A critical point appears to have been reached in the Madero administration. The resignation of the cabinet was demanded in the chamber of deputies last night by Deputy Moreno, but the president of the chamber refused to permit discussion, and the motion will come up again today.

With Gen. Felix Diaz, a nephew of the exiled president, in undisputed control of Vera Cruz, Mexico's most important seaport, reports have reached here also of new uprisings in various parts of the republic, including the city of Pachuca, only 55 miles from the capital.

A train load of troops from the state of Morelos reached the capital last night and will reinforce General Beltrán in the campaign against Diaz. The day before the fall of Vera Cruz, the legislature of the state of Morelos formally protested to the central government against the weakness of the federal forces in that state, and requested reinforcements in view of the increased bands operating there.

All Power Detailed.

The government, however, has determined to throw all its power against Diaz, even if it should become necessary to ignore for the present its war with the Zapatistas, the factions under other revolutionary leaders, and the roving bands of rebels who are operating in many regions independently.

General Diaz is said to be gaining strength in the coast country, and it is believed he will make an effort to occupy the port of Tampico, although early advice do not indicate a formal movement towards the interior. President Madero and his ministers persist in minimizing the importance of the revolt and express the opinion that General Diaz will never get out of the state of Vera Cruz.

Many Arrests Made.

Numerous arrests have been made of men of minor importance who are believed to be implicated in the plot. There is some uneasiness and fear of trouble in the capital; the soldiers are in barracks ready for duty, but there has been no sign of disorder or a rising.

The Diaz control appears to be centered in the town of Vera Cruz and the adjacent territory. Orizaba is still under the control of the government. All traffic to Vera Cruz has been suspended and a rigid censorship is being exercised over all government wires.

The government insists that it can prevail upon the gunboats to lead it

GREECE DECLARES WAR THIS MORNING

Athens, Oct. 18.—2:30 a. m.—Greece, not wishing to detach herself from her allies, sent instructions early this morning to her minister at Constantinople to communicate a declaration of war. The port, Greece at the same time sent a fraternal greeting to the allied states.

Serbia was the first of the three states to declare war last night. Bulgaria followed with a similar declaration.

Belgrade, Oct. 17.—War against Turkey was formally declared tonight by the Serbian government. The declaration was transmitted to the Serbian minister at Constantinople this afternoon with instructions to present it to the port tomorrow.

The great powers also will receive notification tomorrow of Serbia's declaration.

Immense crowds paraded the streets singing and cheering after the announcement of Serbia's determination to fight. The crowds are increasing hourly and an enthusiastic war spirit prevails.

War Now General.

London, Oct. 17.—War today became general through the Balkan peninsula. Turkey, already engaged in fighting Montenegro, this morning declared formal declaration of hostilities against Serbia and Bulgaria.

Greece, supposed to be in sympathy with Serbia and Bulgaria, was not mentioned in the declaration. The Greek minister has not been asked to leave Turkey. The Turkish minister left Athens.

Greece Not Blamed.

In the declaration of war, Turkey places the blame on Bulgaria and Serbia. Although Turkey has anticipated the Balkan states and ordered Greece from the declaration of war, Turkey's withdrawal of her troops from the immediate vicinity of the Greek frontier and the omission of Greece from the declaration of war were doubtless dictated by Kiamat Pasha, president of the council of state, and the real Turkish government.

It is believed to avoid a fight with Greece, whose interests as he recently told the Greek premier, are identical with those of Turkey. He also desired to cede the island of Crete to Greece.

War to Be Blessed.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 17.—King Ferdinand is on his way to the headquarters of the Bulgarian army, near the Turkish frontier. The king's manifesto to the people, proclaiming war, will be published tomorrow.

A special service will be held in the cathedral, when the archbishop will invoke a blessing on the holy war on which the country is embarking. Similar services will be held throughout the country.

AUGUSTA STRIKE ENDS.

Street Railway Men Accept Concessions Granted by Company.

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 17.—The street railway strike which has tied up traffic in the city for more than a month and resulted in the death of three citizens, was ended tonight when the striking employees accepted the concessions granted by the company.

It was announced that the state troops would be withdrawn and that all strike breakers would be dismissed tomorrow night.

Prominent Men of Waco

There has always been commendation for the man who made two blades of grass grow where one grew before, and George G. Stubblefield ought to be in that class because he has made it possible for fifteen fellows to work where two worked before. George Stubblefield—and that is the manner in which he is most frequently addressed because he is a good fellow with everyone who knows him—was born in Waco and reared here. When he was 15 years old he was attracted to the grocery business and worked for the McLendon company in this city. Later he was with J. C. Riley & Sons, resigning that position to go to Roswell, N. M., as manager of a syndicate of stores. One year in that western country was enough for him and as "everybody's doing it," he joined the many former Wacoans who are returning to their native town. He saw an opening here for a high-class grocery on lines so different than what others followed that it looks like an original. He started in business with one clerk, one delivery boy and one telephone, his idea being to build up a thoroughly sanitary grocery and delicatessen. At the end of three years his establishment has grown so that he now employs six salesmen, six deliverymen, a bookkeeper, storekeeper and porter and eight telephones are needed to accommodate the many calls. He has the enviable record of a thousand families who are served regularly by his establishment.

U. S. SENATOR DIES "WILSON DAY" DECIDED

HEYBURN, 60, OF IDAHO, VICTIM OF COMPLICATION OF DISEASES.

End Comes at His Washington Apartments After Lingering Illness—Was Conspicuous Figure in the Senate.

Washington, Oct. 17.—United States Senator Heyburn of Idaho died at his apartments here tonight after a lingering illness. He was 60 years old and had been in the senate nine years.

A complication of diseases, involving the heart and kidneys, caused the senator's death. He had not been well since last March, when he collapsed after delivering a speech in the senate on the arbitration treaties, in spite of doctors' warnings that the effort might cost him his life.

Several weeks ago, apparently regaining strength after a serious relapse, the senator said Mrs. Heyburn made preparations for a trip west. Another relapse followed, however, and since then the patient had been growing steadily weaker. Today the doctors thought he was slightly improved, but death came suddenly a few minutes before 8 o'clock tonight.

Body to Be Taken to Old Home.

No arrangements have been made for the funeral, but the body will be taken to the old home of Senator Heyburn in Birmingham, Pa., for burial.

Senator Heyburn was born in Delaware, May 25, 1852, his parents being Quakers of English descent. After being admitted to the bar in 1876 he practiced law continuously until he entered the senate. He married Miss Margaret Yeatman, who survives him and has no children.

In 1887 the senator moved to Shoshone, Idaho, which had been his home ever since. He was a member of the Idaho constitutional convention and had served as delegate to the national Republican convention and as Republican national committeeman, January 13, 1902. He was elected to the senate in January, 1909, was re-elected to serve until 1915.

Conspicuous in Senate.

One of the staunchest of the regular Republicans and a man of strong convictions, frankly and emphatically expressed on all occasions, Senator Heyburn had for years been a conspicuous figure in the senate.

He was most widely known, perhaps, for his unyielding bitterness toward the south, and frequent denunciations of southern civil war leaders. He called the placing of Lee's statue in the Capitol an insult to the nation, and in discussing this and many other incidents engaged in acrimonious debates with southern senators.

During the past few years, since the development of serious divisions in the Republican ranks, Senator Heyburn had played a prominent part in the fight for party regularity.

He always opposed Colonel Roosevelt's conservation ideas. One of his first acts as a senator to attract public notice was strong support of the pure food and drugs act when it was before congress for passage.

The senator's wide range of information, fine memory and readiness of speech always assured him of attention when he arose to speak on any subject.

T. R. DODGES BLOOD POISON

COLONEL'S CONDITION BELIEVED IMPROVED; PHYSICIANS ARE MORE CONFIDENT.

TWINS PAY HIM CALL

PAIR ADMITTED BECAUSE THEY COULD NOT TALK.

MAY LEAVE HOSPITAL SOON

Doctors Believe Ex-President May Go Home Early Next Week—Teddy Replies to Bryan.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Throughout a day of unbroken calm, Colonel Roosevelt lay in his bed in Mercy Hospital with practically no indication of danger in his condition.

It was a day of waiting with the over-present possibility of complications, but with lessened fears on the part of those who were watching over the wounded man. He seemed in his almost normal condition, but his physicians said he was by no means out of danger.

Colonel Roosevelt's physicians were discussing tonight the length of time it will be necessary for the colonel to remain in the hospital.

May Leave Hospital Next Week.

It was believed that it might be safe for him to leave for Oyster Bay on Monday or Tuesday, if all goes well, but not even a tentative decision was reached.

The clinical records were the most encouraging of any day since Colonel Roosevelt entered the hospital. During the morning the variation in temperature was limited to two-tenths of a degree and throughout the afternoon it was reported as normal. There was virtually no variation in pulse.

The period of possible development of blood poisoning has still another day to run and although the physicians said a change might occur within an hour at any time during the next day, they were more optimistic tonight as to the outcome than at any previous time.

Lockjaw Possible.

Possibility of tetanus, always to be reckoned with in the case of bullet wounds, has still to be considered, and as the period in which this might develop, the physicians said, is six or seven days, Colonel Roosevelt will not be regarded as entirely out of danger even should the next day pass with no signs of blood poisoning.

Scoury L. Terrell said the colonel could not leave the hospital safely until the expiration of this period, and for that reason a very real danger as out of the question to consider the colonel's departure for Oyster Bay before early next week.

Mrs. Roosevelt Always Near.

All day Mrs. Roosevelt was at the bedside, and to her husband's faithful assistance she was the victim of machine rule, she said he must see no one with the exception of his family. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Ethel Roosevelt and Mrs. Longworth talked to him from time to time, but even these family chats were limited to a few minutes on each occasion.

Twice during the day however, Mrs. Roosevelt made exceptions to her rule. Miss Jane Adams of Hull House, one of the most active workers for the Progressive party, called late in the afternoon and spent ten minutes with Colonel Roosevelt.

She had hardly departed, when two babies, twins who were spending the first day of their lives in the hospital were brought in. As there was no possibility of a conversation between Colonel Roosevelt and the twins, Mrs. Roosevelt admitted them for a moment.

Gets Glimpse of Outside.

With the aid of a mirror, which enabled him to catch a glimpse of the outworld without turning about in his bed, Colonel Roosevelt looked out at the street scenes.

He was eager to be up and out of doors, and spoke longingly of his horse, Sadar, on which he is accustomed to ride each morning when he is at Seward's Hill. He ate three hearty meals and said that he felt "bully."

The colonel found it difficult to arrange his pillows comfortably when he wished to read and a special head rest was brought in for him. It is fitted between the mattress and the bed spreads and is so arranged that the patient, by turning a wheel, can elevate his head and shoulders to any desired angle. Mr. Roosevelt had doubts as to his liking it and Mr. Terrell took it. It was fixed to the bed in the adjoining room and the doctor, after testing it until his back was lame, told the colonel he would change beds with him at any time he desired. The change may be made tomorrow.

Answers Bryan.

Campaign activities should not cease because of Colonel Roosevelt's attempted assassination. The following statement was issued by Colonel Roosevelt at Mercy hospital in answer to what Mr. Bryan said yesterday in his speech at Franklin, Ind., continuing the colonel said:

"I wish to express my cordial agreement with the many and proper statement of Mr. Bryan at Franklin, Ind., when, in arguing for a continuance of the discussion of the issues at stake in the contest, he said:

"The issues of this campaign should not be determined by the act of an assassin. Neither Colonel Roosevelt nor his friends could ask that the discussion be turned away from the principles involved. It is elected president it should be because of what he has done in the past and not what he proposes to do hereafter.

Don't Ask It.

"I wish to point out, however, that neither I nor my friends have asked that the discussion be turned away from the principles involved. On the contrary, we demand that the discussion be carried on precisely as if I had not been shot. I shall be sorry if Mr. Wilson does not keep on the stump and I feel that he owes it to himself and the American people to continue on the stump.

"I wish to make one more comment on Mr. Bryan's statement. It is of course perfectly true that in voting for me or against me, consideration must be paid to what I have done in the past and what I propose to do. But it seems to me far more important that consideration should be paid to what the progressive party proposes to do.

"I cannot too strongly emphasize the fact upon which we progressives insist that the welfare of any one man in this fight wholly is immaterial compared to the great and fundamental issues involved in the triumph of the principles for which our cause stands. Death would not have stopped fight.

"If I had been killed the fight would have gone on exactly the same way. Governor Johnson, Senator Beveridge, Mr. Strauss, Senator Beveridge, Mr. Adams, Clifford Finchot, Judge Ben Lindsey, Raymond Robbins, Mr. Pronger and the hundreds of other men now on the stump are preaching the doctrines that I have been preaching and stand for and represent just the same cause.

"They would have continued the fight in exactly the same way if I had been killed and they are continuing in just the same way now that I am for the moment laid up.

"So far as my opponents are concerned, whatever could, with truth and propriety, have been said against me and my cause before I was shot can, with equal truth and propriety, be said against me now and it should be said; and the things that cannot be said now are merely the things that ought not to have been said before. This is not a contest about any man. It is a contest concerning principles.

"If my broken rib heals fast enough to relieve my breathing, I hope to be able to make one or two speeches yet in this campaign, in any event if I am not able to make them, the men I have mentioned above and the hundreds like them will be stating our case right to the end of the campaign and I trust our opponents will be stating their case also."

Mrs. Roosevelt rests.

Mrs. Roosevelt retired shortly after 9 o'clock.

It was the first time since her arrival that she had left the patient during his waking hours. The colonel insisted she have a long sleep to "catch up" and reassured by the reports of the physicians she at last consented. Miss Ethel Roosevelt left at the same time for her temporary home in the neighborhood. The colonel said he was not sleepy and after his wife and daughter left he propped himself up in bed to read.

Dr. Terrell Well-Known Texan.

Fort Worth, Oct. 17.—Dr. Scurry L. Terrell of Dallas, who is attending Colonel Roosevelt, is well known in Fort Worth. He is a relative by marriage, though the name is similar, to one of the Terrell families here. He is a brother-in-law of former County Judge John L. Terrell. A. W. Terrell and Mrs. John B. Hawley. He married a daughter of the late J. C. Terrell of Fort Worth.

An interesting story is told of the way he came to be selected for the important post of accompanying Colonel Roosevelt on his campaign tour. Last summer, it is said, when Colonel Lyon was taken suddenly ill in Dallas and fainted in the office of United States Marshal George Green, a hurried call for a physician was sent out, and Dr. Terrell was the first to arrive. His skill in caring for Colonel Lyon so impressed Roosevelt's Texas aide that when the campaign tour was planned, Colonel Lyon, who formed a member of the party, induced Dr. Terrell to take the post.

His chance call to attend Colonel Lyon thus placed him in the important position he now occupies.

Mrs. Roosevelt wired:

"My family and I unite in thanks for your kind expression of sympathy."

STATE RESTS BECKER CASE

negro telephone operator at the apartments where Becker lived in July, testified that Audubon 604 was the telephone number of the apartment house. He remembered the telephone call to which the previous witness testified.

Haywood said the man at the other end of the line asked for Becker. After he received the call Becker went out.

On cross examination Haywood was quite clear, he said, in his recollection of that call.

He was certain the date was July 15. Wife of "Lefty Louie" on Stand.

Lillian Rosenberg, wife of "Lefty Louie," one of the gunmen charged with the actual slaying of Roosevelt, was the next witness.

"Where was your husband on the night of the murder?" asked Mr. McIntyre, in cross examination.

"I don't know."

"Where were you?"

"I don't know."

"At home?"

"What was your husband's business?"

"Salesman, he traveled."

Gunmen in Court.

The gunmen were brought into court and William Kelly the next witness identified "Whitey Louie" and "Dago Frank" as the men who rented apartments from him under the name of Gordon some time after June 10.

Max Margolis, who described himself as a "typesetter" for newspapers testified next. He said he had known Becker for five months and was present at the so-called "fake" raid made by Becker on Rosenthal's gambling house.

Becker had asked him to enter the house and be ready to swear out affidavits, he said, as to what he saw as evidence that Rosenthal was keeping a gambling house.

Witness Said He Went in with the Raiders.

"They were breaking down the doors," said Margolis, "when I heard Mrs. Rosenthal say: 'Wait a minute, I'll let you in.'"

"After we got in, I heard Mrs. Rosenthal ask: 'Why, Charley, what are you doing?' Becker then took her into a back room and held a conversation with her."

On cross examination Mr. McIntyre forced from the witness a flat admission that he committed perjury when he swore in his affidavits that he made bets in this pool room.

Mr. McIntyre asked the court to commit Margolis to jail on the ground that he had admitted he had perjured himself.

"Mr. Whitman is familiar with the case," replied the court.

"The act of perjury was not committed before me and therefore I am unwilling to grant your request."

Margolis was excused.

Schepps Again on Stand.

Sam Schepps was recalled to the stand.

"We want to withdraw some objections we made to the witness testimony on examination," Mr. Moss said.

Justice Goff directed that the questions be repeated.

"They have to do with statements Schepps is alleged to have made to Acting Mayor Pettit of Hot Springs and other residents of that city."

Makes Denial.

Schepps had previously said to say on his previous examination that he had said to Pettit that "I was very much devoted to Jack Rose and would do anything he asked me to."

Schepps today answered in the affirmative the question asked if such were the case. He was allowed to deny that he said that Rosenthal ought to have been killed.

Corrects Questioner.

"Did Mr. Bergdoll say to you: 'Why did you kill Herman Rosenthal?' He was a good fellow," asked Mr. Hart, reading the question from the record.

"No he said: 'Why did they kill Rosenthal?'" corrected Schepps.

Schepps was excused and Charles A. Bentein, cashier of the Franklin Savings bank was called. When he was asked how much money Becker had on deposit at the bank, Mr. McIntyre made a vigorous objection, declaring such evidence was irrelevant to the murder charge.

White counsel argued the point of law. Justice Goff excused the jury.

Mr. McIntyre said the introduction of the testimony may so prejudice the jury that the defendant may not be granted a fair trial. The court sustained the objection.

Rose Recalled.

Mr. Bentein was then excused and Jack Rose was recalled to the stand.

Mr. Moss explained to the court the witness testified on his previous examination that he was a collector for Becker and that he now wished to ask Rose "what he collected for Becker."

By oversight Mr. Moss explained, the question was not asked when Rose was on the stand before. Mr. McIntyre entered another objection and the court sustained him, but instructed Mr. Moss that he could ask the witness as to his "business relations with the defendant."

This did not satisfy Mr. Moss and Rose was excused.

The state here rested its case and Mr. McIntyre made the usual motion to have was not proved; that only alleged accomplices of the defendant had given their testimony with slight corroboration the case dismissed on the ground that it and that such evidence was not competent to secure a conviction. This motion was denied and the case was adjourned until tomorrow.

THE A. & M. DIRECTORS ARRIVE

Exhibits Start Praise from Every Person Visiting Grounds—Methers' Congress Holds Meeting.

Dallas, Oct. 17.—Dallas Day proved the final triumph of the Texas spirit. With the rain beating on their faces, thousands of people crowded through the turnstiles Thursday morning and were laughing over the grounds, scorning such minor discomforts as wet weather produced. Nevertheless there were not as many as a sunshiny day would have produced. As a course, that's why President Eckford has called a meeting of the State Fair directors for 2:30 Thursday afternoon, when the proposition of another Dallas Day next week was taken up. President Eckford favors the plan, feeling that Dallas people should have one perfect day when they may revel in the amusements the big exposition produces.

Good Roads Day.

Today is Good Roads Day and Methers' Congress Day. Despite the driving rain, a number of staunch advocates of good roads in Texas met in Convention Tent No. 1 and carried out their program.

"This rain simply proves the value of good roads," said Judge E. O. Dunlap, president of the state association. "When I left Waxahachie farm, I was bringing in my produce over the good roads which bond issues have made possible."

In the tent a map shows that in 1912 bond issues for good roads have been voted in as many counties, and only 14 have failed. As pointed out by Homer D. Wade in an address delivered Thursday morning, where the bond issues have been defeated, a majority of the voters wanted them, the two-thirds provision defeating the issue.

Making Children Happy.

Probably no part of the big state exposition rivals in intense human interest than the shows by the Mothers' Congress. There one may find in strikingly realistic pictures the reasons why some children are happy and healthy, while others must go through life bedeviled with diseases for which parents are to blame. The sinful fathers' crimes when he was sowing his wild oats and the folios of his children are shown with faithfulness that is making this exhibition one of the really great educational features of the fair.

May Be Another Dallas Day.

A meeting of the board of Fair directors has been called for Thursday afternoon," said President J. J. Eckford Thursday morning, "at which meeting the proposition of another Dallas Day during the fair will be taken up. I favor the plan. I want the Dallas people to have one day of perfect weather for seeing the many attractions here."

Noticeable among the visitors to the fair were a number from Victoria, Tex., this being also Victoria Day. No program was carried out, the visitors contenting themselves with inspecting the multicolored exhibits.

A. and M. Directors.

The board of directors of the A. and M. College arrived in Dallas early Thursday afternoon. The exhibit is vital importance to these sections of east, south and southwest Texas, where the early spring is likely to be ushered in with warm weather, followed by cold. The board of directors of the extension department of A. and M. College, is enthusiastic over the heating plan. He declares that tests made in California and south Texas show that the heat from the district of 50 to 60 to the acre, raise the temperature from four to six degrees. He thinks 100 to the acre the ideal number, these producing a raise in temperature of from 15 to 25 degrees. Oil is used for heating purposes.

Milwaukee Authorities Receive Numerous Requests Since Shooting.

Schrank's Suit Released.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 17.—The ball of John Schrank, charged with attempting to kill Theodore Roosevelt, is still in the hands of the Milwaukee police. The ball, which was today increased from $7500 to $15,000 by Judge Backus of the municipal court, to which the case has been transferred.

The effort has been made by the prisoners to furnish a bond and no reason has thus far been given for doubling the amount.

Colonel Roosevelt will not be required to testify with a short string of his attempted slayer, according to the decision of District Attorney Sabel today.

"I have sufficient testimony to prosecute Schrank regardless of his own statements and confessions," said Mr. Sabel. "I have witnesses to the shooting and also patrolmen who saw the revolver in his hand and can testify to his struggle to escape from his captor."

Souvenir hunters by the score are visiting the district attorney or sending him letters asking for relics, such as portions of Colonel Roosevelt's shirt, the gun or any of the things found upon Schrank.

Schrank has a rosary which he refuses to part with. He wears it about his neck, with a short string. When he was first taken to the county jail he was asked to turn it over to the jailer, because it was feared he might use it in an attempt to commit suicide. He protested so vigorously that Sheriff Arnold permitted him to retain it.

COLQUITT IS UNIQUE

SUGGESTS THAT THE MEXICAN GOVERNMENT PAY FOR KILLING WOLVES.

In This Way the Rebels Could Get Employment and Be Discouraged from Present Warfare.

Austin, Oct. 17.—Governor Colquitt in a formal letter to Acting Secretary of State Huntington F. Wilson suggests the employment of a number of Mexicans in wolf extermination might put the idle to work and aid the revolutionary situation. The letter is written at the suggestion of the Mexican officials who desire that the governor of Texas suggest means to be employed in co-operating to destroy predatory animals.

The letter follows:

"I note your request that I make suggestions as to legislation by the Mexican states. In Texas, we have appropriated a large sum of money for killing or exterminating predatory wild animals, but the sheep and cattle raisers of the section of Texas bordering on the Rio Grande complain that these wild animals cross that river into Texas from Mexico as rapidly as they are exterminated on this side of the river. It has been suggested to me that an appropriation of money by the Mexican states for the taking and destroying of these predatory wild animals might give to the dissatisfied population employment, which would divert their minds and attention from revolution and robbery."

NO FEES WHEN NO SERVICE

County Judge Not Entitled to Pay for Perfunctory Signing of His Name.

Austin, Oct. 17.—In an opinion to County Judge Roscoe Thomas of Fannin county, Assistant Attorney General Funderburk holds that the county judge, under the provisions of the revised statutes of 1911, article 3589, is not entitled to the commission therein provided, of one half of one per cent of the cash receipts of each executor, administrator, and guardian upon the approval of the exhibits and the final settlement of the accounts of such executor, administrator or guardian in the case of an independent executor.

He finds that it requires no work merely to approve the inventory and appraisal of an independent county executor, that the county judge might approve an inventory for a million dollars within half an hour, and that he should not be entitled to this big fee. "Where the estate is administered in court, the county judge is not merely charged with the duty of approving exhibits and accounts, but he has many duties and responsibilities in connection with the administration in consideration of which in my opinion the commission is allowed to be charged," writes Mr. Funderburk.

McLennan Escapes the Worm.

Austin, Oct. 17.—The reports of the state hookworm commission now indicate that hookworm infection is to be found in sixty six counties in this state. The reports are based on work done by Dr. Stiles in 1911, on letters sent in by private physicians and by examinations made by the commission since its organization. The counties listed as hookworm infected are: Anderson, Angelina, Austin, Baylor, Bexar, Bexley, Bowie, Brazoria, Camp, Cherokee, Clay, Colorado, Comanche, Dallas, Dewitt, El Paso, Fannin, Freestone, Gillespie, Gregg, Grimes, Gaudin, Hardin, Harris, Harrison, Henderson, Hill, Houston, Hunt, Jasper, Jeff, Kaufman, Kaufman, Leon, Liberty, Limestone, Llano, Marion, Maverick, Milam, Montgomery, Nacogdoches, Navarro, Newton, Nueces, Orange, Panola, Polk, Rains, Red River, Robertson, Rock, Sabine, San Jacinto, San Augustine, Shelby, Smith, Stephens, Tarrant, Titus, Trinity, Tyler, Upshur, Van Zandt, Walker, Waller, Wilson and Wichita.

An amendment was filed by Farmers and Merchants State bank of Kennedy, increasing its capital stock from $20,000 to $50,000.

Droeben Loses First Case.

Austin, Oct. 17.—In the local district court there were today continued to the next term of court by agreement four cases charging forgery against E. L. (Buck) Droeben, formerly pension clerk in the state department of pensions. He is charged with having forged fraudulent Confederate pension warrants and in the first case the jury late last night brought in a verdict giving him three years in the penitentiary. A motion for a new trial is to be filed by his attorneys, that failing, the case will be appealed at once to the court of criminal appeals.

As to the Game Laws.

Austin, Oct. 17.—In an opinion to W. L. Denham, deputy game warden at Eagle Pass, Assistant Attorney General C. C. Funderburk holds that the state game, fish and oyster commissioner and his deputies have no more authority than the ordinary citizen in the execution of criminal process in cases other than those involving the game laws. He adds that they are civil officers, and are entitled to carry arms while, and only while, they are employed in the discharge of the duty of their office.

"WILSON DAY" DECIDED

My "indictment against the Republican administration of the past is that under them we have gone on without any real progress. We have been without pilots; we have been without charts. No man has laid down any intelligible course and in these latter years we have been adequately paralyzed.

Attacks President.

A Democratic house, a senate mixed with Democrats and Republicans, and near Republicans; men who had revolted against the policy of the Republican party and were coming very slowly around to the position which their Democratic colleagues had long occupied, and even a president unwilling to use even a united house when they could have rare occasions unite, accomplish anything to change the existing order of things, a president who though he had condemned one of the most conspicuous schedules of the present tariff, was not willing to set in its details, but in its general purpose he had himself, indeed showing that what you are asking to do is one of the other two things. You are either asked to drift under no guidance at all, or you are asked to stand still, whether the sea could afford to do so.

Hears "Prosperity."

"Don't you catch the sound of the wind in the air; don't you hear the murmur of the great multitudes of men who say: 'Prosperity? who are enjoying prosperity? The country has not reached prosperity. We do not find our wages going up, we find it almost impossible to pay our bills, and when our wages do occasionally go up, the prices go higher and the wages cannot keep up with the prices. Prosperity? you are the part of men who are reaping the harvest at the top; but not much of it percolates to us."

Wilson at Head of Parade.

Williamson, Del., Oct. 17.—Hearing an illuminated parade, Governor Wilson was given a great reception in the streets here tonight. He addressed an overflowed meeting and was greeted with loud cheers everywhere.

The governor referred in his speech to Republican billboard advertisements, showing a picture of President Taft surrounded with campaign arguments.

"One phrase in that advertisement sticks in my memory," said the governor. "It is 'It is better to be safe than sorry.' It is also better to hug a bear than to steal it. But I would rather be courageous than sorry. I would rather embrace a great cause,

Underwood to Speak With Wilson.

New York, Oct. 17.—Representative Oscar W. Underwood, recent candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, will speak from the same platform with Governor Wilson at Carnegie Hall, New York, Saturday night.

Democratic Chairman William F. McCombs has asked western Democratic leaders to meet him in Chicago in the first three days of next week for final conferences over campaign matters.

With the world's series passed into mystery, will Waco please remember the Cotton Palace?

With submarines at Salamis and aeroplanes at Marathon, it is clear that ancient Greece is getting up-to-date.—New York Sun. With ex-presidents being shot in Milwaukee and six-shooters more plentiful in New York than in Texas, what's the Sun's present diagnosis for America?

The platform adopted by the Democratic state convention at Syracuse is a marvel of evasion, insincerity and humbug.—New York Mail. Mails cannot breathe in Texas. When once their nostrils scent our air that moment they go broke! (Apologies to Mansfield.)

If the country exchanges are to be credited, the State Insurance Board at Austin is chief tire inflater for the insurance companies' rate automobile.

Who can sympathize with the English government graft investigation? Who can be interested in the same daily program for the United States? The right little, tight little Island has successfully covered its leaks so long that its American children are glad to export a little of the practice.

Cook's tours now include the Texas cotton fields in the itinerary. And the housewife has gone to the kitchen. That cotton field will save the state from votes for women yet.

Glenn Curtis announces he has perfected a "synapse" device which gives automatic stability to the flying machine. Glenn's invitation to take another spin will be accepted when he has perfected an attachment to his biplane resembling the spiral fire escape on a public school.

With no intention of hitting Mr. Taft again, it may be remarked that Charley, like charity, began at home.

To add to the horrors of the campaign, Secretary Knox is coming back from Japan.—New York Telegram. Risking the chastisement that any daffodil richly deserves, we would ask if the election is put up to the house of representatives, can Philander?

If there is a special circle of Tophet reserved for those who muddy our ideals, the Bostonian who started the report that the author of "Casey Jones" is a college professor is scheduled for the bottom-most oven.

That Oklahoma editor who has started a God-less, heaven-less, hell-less, punishment-less and sense-less paper should remember that Bob Ingersoll is the one American who has never been successfully imitated and that Tom Paine had brains.

MOST UNKIND CUT.

"Comparisons," quoth Dogberry, "are odorous and vile"—a statement that the editor commends! And further admonition is embodied in the plea: "Kind Power, please protect us from our friends." But yesterday he struggled to be statesmanlike and bright—his paragraphs a credit to the sheet. He talked of advertising and of Wilson's manly stunt—a combination timely, live and mete. He dealt with Montenegro, the world's series and the schools; with Mexico, the women and their votes. Scarce a modern topic was neglected in his phrase and not a need was slighted in his notes. Yet in spite of all his effort, what reward now moves his rage—what treatment stirs his very honest wrath? In the uppermost corner of the editor's own page.

Stands this mean, nasty, ridiculously unnecessary announcement, headlining a mass of Austin comment and inviting scathing comparison with his own work:

EDUCATIONAL.

This is the most unkind cut of all!

BLACK LISTING.

Putting aside for the time being the question of analogy between the situation that led to the enactment of the "blacklisting law" and the situation obtaining in the public schools of this city, as to the right reserved by the school board to annul teachers' contracts on two weeks' notice without assigning reason for the action, it is significant that the amendment clause of the contract is being discussed in the light of its bearing on public service.

Summarily to dismiss a public servant—and, surely, none is more distinctively a public servant than a school teacher—without making clear to her the reasons for the dismissal, is repugnant to every theory and every demand of capable, enlightened public service. Such a situation is, to be sure, not infrequent in these days where political patronage and personal friendship are the usual steps to public position; it is an indispensable part of the victor's spoils. Out of its injustice and incompetency grew the federal civil service; the criterion of successful examination being regarded as sufficient to entitle a man to retain his place during good behavior. Out of the hardship and injustice of the method, extended even to private employment by corporations—the unexplained dismissal, the "black list," resulted the statutes prohibiting so harsh a practice.

Immediately the public inquires whether political methods shall be applied to the schools; whether the least trace of political or personal favoritism shall attach to teachers' employment. The great cry of the time is "keep the schools out of politics." When a teacher is required to qualify for place in the schools by obtaining the certificates issued by the state, she has passed a "civil service" examination, after a course of training, far superior to that demanded of federal employees. The school board, of course, must contract with teachers annually. That is a necessary and proper check on teaching service, and inseparable from the liability of an independent district trusteeship for its own contracts, where the board is constantly changing. There is no implication that the annulment clause in the local contracts has the remotest foundation in political patronage or is to bolster the opportunities for personal favor; there is no inference that this feature is intended for a safeguard against anything but incompetence, misconduct or the need of reducing teaching staffs; and intended as a preventative of lawsuits. The citizens would not believe that politics enter into school governance.

Nevertheless, the present clause smacks of the old "black list." The teacher has the right to know openly why she is deprived of the contract; why she is dismissed, in plain English. When her contract is annulled, obviously there was reason for the act.

That her employers should not be required to give this reason is a wrench at the maintenance of disinterested and honest public service in the schools and antagonistic to the reward due such service. One's sense of justice rebels at the idea of putting a school teacher against the necessity of seeking another position unable to explain why her last occupation was terminated. Her rights, and the consideration of her rights, are less than those given by statute to the employee of a private or public corporation.

Is this the American way?

REVOLUTION 999.

While it is difficult to keep in count with the "patriotic uprisings" in the history of the neighbor Republic, and absolutely outrageous to be expected to give an intelligent review of the four-eleven-forty-four political parties concerned in same, the best recollection is that revolution No. 999 must now be registered at Mexico City in the department of desperate doings.

Gen. Felix Diaz has entered Vera Cruz at the head of 500 men. He is a nephew of the illustrious and long-time former president. Enlisting "under his rebellious banner," the army, the police corps and the marine corps at Vera Cruz are "viva la Republica!" with Felix. He has captured a couple of government gunboats and seems to have made a soldier of fortune start. He dodged seventeen government secret service men at Vera Cruz, there being no Bill Burns in the country. Even the native newspapers "rumored his defection" in advance. And the seventeen secret, secret service men watched. And Felix got the army, the police, the marine corps and a railroad pass to San Andreas Tuxtla, which was quite a saving, as they charge not only by the mile, but so much per word for the name of your destination, in them parts. He is sojourning in San Andreas and gathering a larger army of vivas.

Felix's illustrious collateral relationship will not arouse abroad any sympathy with Felix's new performance. His famed name may win for him a few hundred additional vivas as he marches on to such terrific battles as have characterized the routine unpleasantness across the border for a score of years. His name, too, will awake poignant regrets that his iron rule is not in the saddle; that the hand that guided—and checked—the nation so long is now idle in Spain. It is said that Mexico City takes this patriotic revolt—it has another name under the constitution and civilization of such nations, as the United States and England—quite seriously. Senor Felix having something of a following in the army from which he lately resigned, and in the machine he built up while chief of police in the capital.

Since the advent of Madero, all the world has murmured regret that age laid heavy hand on Porfirio Diaz and that, perforce, he left the country to its delirious devices. Here is a man of his name leaving the nation's service to add to the nation's shame and suffering. O tempora! O mores! Likewise O Taft! O Madero! Please finish Felix!

It was good of the intelligent F. Diaz to await the conclusion of the world's series; and not inconsiderable to relieve this country's attention from the Balkan barbecue. No such thanks are due the Messrs. Orozco, as they undoubtedly are not conversant with the fact that the Balkans are battling, or that the map bears such a settlement as Montenegro. Mr. Aguilar, who also staggers under the title of "Gen," momentarily may join Felix. It presents a beautiful opportunity for the federals to dispose of two skylarks with the same brick. On to Vera Cruz!

The world is thoroughly ennuied with this Mexican muddle, but it has never censured Madero. The withdrawal of Porfirio Diaz removed all restraint; every "great" and emotional Mexican whose patriotism could be submerged by his love of titles and display has been plotting, and every "soldier" who desired a little explosive excitement has been patriotically at the service of the nation's internal foes. And yet Americans raise hands in outraged horror at the cry of intervention.

For the first time in modern history it would appear the famous utterance of Napoleon is locally disproved: "No man is indispensable—nor I, nor Caesar, nor Alexander. The world will go on!" That's alright for the world, but powerful tough on Mexico.

Ave Porfirio Diaz! A nation sick of trashy heroics salutes you!

Philadelphia North American rejoices that Mr. Roosevelt's "deliberately misrepresents" applied to W. Wilson, is longer and handsomer than the other form. W. Wilson is now giving the Colonel no chance to employ any form. It is a season of quiet and chivalry.

Texas Viewpoints

The Waco News asks the people and the press of Texas to give the Thirty-third legislature a chance, by which is meant that criticism should not be made in advance of the meeting of the legislature. We know of no one who is not disposed to give the next legislature a chance to make good, and certainly everybody will be glad to see it do so. There are some excellent men who will be in the next session and good things are expected of them. However, there is a tendency to withhold opinion until the new legislature shows what it is going to do.—San Antonio Express.

It would be unreasonable to expect the busy writers who dwell with The Express "Texas Editors" to read an editorial of the length of "Texas Big Business," to which their comment above refers. Apparently that line concerning "a chance" for the next legislature caught the eye, nothing more. And it would be not only a happy, but a distinctly novel situation if none was disposed to give in advance of the convening at Austin; if there were, indeed, "a tendency to withhold opinion until the new legislature shows what it is going to do." The Express' editors almost number their years of service four to one with Viewpoints. But lately from the state capital, Viewpoints knows the stupid old wall that always foretells a legislative session is present again this autumn in swarms. The young 'un rubbing elbows frequently gets closer to the comment of the times than the old 'un reading editorials, or writing them. There are the same old "woe to the state" jeremiads as of yore; the same old brilliants in some of the paragraphs now on the exchange table. "The legislature is in the offing and the state is taking to the fort!" It has been the tale since the Thirtieth legislature, surely; probably before. It is certainly desirable that the Express' glad, new tidings shall permeate every section of the state and that everybody will be pleased to see the Thirty-third legislature make good. But the plaintive prognosticator is among us, just the same, and it was to his kind that "Texas Big Business" was addressed.

Rev. H. D. Knickerbocker, one of the most prominent Methodist ministers of the state, who is pastor of the Austin street church in Waco, is preaching a series of sermons on the question of the most popular road to hell out of Waco.

It is hard to say just which should be considered the most popular road, but an easily accessible and quick route for a great many of the people of the Geyer City, the same as in almost any other, would be to walk down to the big suspension bridge, tie a 200-pound rock to their neck, and jump over the rail.—McKinney Courier-Gazette.

With the long experience and training of the ministry, it seems strange some of them haven't devoted some time to macadamizing the path in the other direction. A merchant wouldn't make much of a success by continually advertising how much more convenient it is to shop at a rival's store.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Isn't it as necessary in their business to blight the primroses on the broad downward route as to pave the narrow lane toward the heights? That seems to be the theory, at any rate, and if heaven ever lay about us in our infancy we've almost forgotten it in the hell being forced on our attention in our growth. Yet how can that be if, as the reverends tell us, we have not "put away childish things?" Old Virgil's "easy is the descent to hell" seems to be more popular a text than "lift up my eyes." It is very surely a muddle for the average sinner.

With the heading: "Texas' Best Newspaper Man," Weatherford Democrat had the following:

Now that James Hays Quarles has been managing editor of the Waco Morning News, he will have a chance to demonstrate his oft-repeated boast that "I am the best newspaper man in Texas." James Hays has until this morning been the board of directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical college, with a good salary, but the smell of the paste pot had alluring fascination for him. His first effort was through a per in Waco he will have title to his claim as being the best newspaper man in Texas.

Between this sanctum and this shop there is a close bond of understanding. Further advice from The Democrat along the line of its concluding statement will be awaited with interest.

With a set of red side-whiskers, Comptroller Lane would put it all over Professor Ozone of the funny papers. Yet, in this hilarious parody, the punch will not become a fad, on this account.—Four States Press.

Wonder whether this is inspired by the fact that Brother Lane lately agitated a drink drouth on the "cracker" side of Texarkiana. With Bowie county, Texas, dry, and Miller county, Arkansas, dry, what a skirmishing poor old Texarkana is put to for an occasional lapse into the immoral carousal beloved of Omar!

Mrs. W. E. Spell of Waco, is leading the movement to raise funds for the Woodrow Wilson campaign in the Eleventh congressional district. So far Mrs. Spell has been quite successful. Her first effort was through a moving picture show benefits.—Cleveland Enterprise.

This Democratic campaign in Texas will be memorable chiefly for two things: The women worked and the men, most of 'em, whistled. Mrs. Spell and her capable co-workers are a credit to this "banner Wilson state."

We start out this morning with great hopes in the newspaper business. We've just read where a Kansas editor has fallen heir to $30,000.—Timpson Times.

What has come over the spirit of The Times? And what's wrong with the paragraphs? Lately Austin Tribune had visions of getting a new $10,000 bill to frame, so that it might have General Grant's kindly features gazing down from the wall. Now Timpson is doing a DeQuincy stunt before Viewpoints' very face and hands. Glory be that the Kansas editor fell heir; but still the wonder grows that he did not fall dead when the tidings came. Will miracles never commence to cease?

Alvarado Bulletin's ideal husband is one who gets as much pleasure out of wheeling the baby carriage as in driving an auto. Bulletin's better-half must look over the proof.

Row in the New Paragraphers' Union

Waco News Applies.

The editor applies for admission to the "paragraphers' union," of which the editor of the Austin Statesman is the present titular head. It is a beautiful device, gives the impression of strength in organization, and off provides the soft or stern answers that may turn away the six-shooter and the balanced boot. It should bring the blush of shame to the brow of the theatre manager—for some of these have blushed, plenty of shame and an occasional brow—to find that the paragraphers' union condemns some sweet unreasonableness of his; when, if he knew it was the personal opinion of some nervous scribbler seeking whom he might devour, he would cut off the paces and, perhaps, the three-inch ad.—Waco Morning News.

Chester Crowell Replies.

The paragraphers' union observes with deep regret the comments of M. M. Harris in the Waco Morning News. Harris is now the paragrapher of the morning paper in that pleasant little bush league town which nestles in the shadow of a 22-story building, flured there, doubtless, by persons who couldn't very well leave and wanted to get as far away from Waco as possible while still voting there. But we disagree.

Mr. Harris wishes to join the paragraphers' union, and along with his application makes the statement that he suspects there is some graft in the organization. We were about to welcome Mr. Harris with open arms until he made that statement. But now we hesitate. In all other particulars he is an ideal member. Having a ready flow of English without superabundance of intelligence, he was qualified to produce filler readily. Having recognized the fact that any income too small for one to hope to say any of it and therefore become cheerful and philosophic about the deadly boredom of living, he was prepared to produce humorous comments and glibly under the tongue or the sun itself, for that matter. Not knowing where he was going, nor why, but seeing clearly that the brakes will not work and the coming tower and the rudder is always uncertain in the ship of human destiny, he was not prone to worry about the little affairs of this day which men call serious. Altogether he was an ideal member.

And then he had to spoil it all by suggesting graft in the organization. The paragraphers' union was originally organized to produce filler and to break into the editorial columns of a newspaper with sickening and undesired eulogy of themselves. To say any of it and therefore become cheerful and philosophic about the deadly boredom of living, he was prepared to produce humorous comments and glibly under the tongue or the sun itself, for that matter. Not knowing where he was going, nor why, but seeing clearly that the brakes will not work and the coming tower and the rudder is always uncertain in the ship of human destiny, he was not prone to worry about the little affairs of this day which men call serious. Altogether he was an ideal member.

And then he had to spoil it all by suggesting graft in the organization. The paragraphers' union was originally organized to produce filler and to break into the editorial columns of a newspaper with sickening and undesired eulogy of themselves. To say any of it and therefore become cheerful and philosophic about the deadly boredom of living, he was prepared to produce humorous comments and glibly under the tongue or the sun itself, for that matter. Not knowing where he was going, nor why, but seeing clearly that the brakes will not work and the coming tower and the rudder is always uncertain in the ship of human destiny, he was not prone to worry about the little affairs of this day which men call serious. Come to Waco, Chester, Waco.

Where there's none who knocks or hates you.

Bring the Paragraphers' Union;

Meet our barkeep, know his smile;

When you come to Waco, Chester,

We'll forget your roast, awhile.

You have called us "bush league."

Chester—

Punctured all our civic pride—

Quite forgetting how we drubbed you.

Over on the baseball side!

You have said we blush for Waco,

Built a tower to turn our shame—

Never mind, come up to Waco;

We'll forgive you, Jess de name!

Let us in the Union, Chester,

Let us in for drinks—and graft.

(When we read your "shamed denial,

Shade of Greeley, how we laughed!)

In the Paragraphers' Union

We can brag of guile and wiles;

Let us in the Union, Chester.

Austin nods, but Waco smiles.

Break away from Austin, Chester,

Where the worst is like the best;

Where one need not wait for Sunday—

Every day's its day of rest.

Break away from slumber, Chester,

Austin doesn't need your wit—

Not until a vacuum cleaner

Stirs the cobwebs out of it.

WE'VE an Austin Street in Waco

Rigger than your Austin town;

City Hall is in the city,

Court house isn't tumbling down—

Come to Waco, Chester, Waco—

Let us in the Union first—

Come to Waco, Waco, Chester,

Educational

The credits allowed by the University of Texas to a graduate of the Waco High School amount to 17 units, as this year, compared with 17 units in 1911, 17 1-2 in 1910, 16 1-2 in 1909, and 14 1-2 in 1908. This information is given in the published bulletin of the University of Texas. The standard of admission to the College of Arts and the Department of Engineering of the University is 14 units of credit. Until the high schools are better developed, students may be admitted conditionally with only 12 units, and without satisfying the foreign language requirement, but the deficiency must be made good within two years. Graduates of affiliated schools will be credited with the subjects they have completed in which the schools are affiliated. If the number of units so credited be less than 12, the deficiency must be made up by examination.

One unit represents approximately the amount of work done in thirty-six weeks or the equivalent of five daily recitations per week, having a minimum period of forty minutes. Many high schools do not yet reach the required standard and four years may be required to make three units of credit in one subject.

Mr. Fletcher's Views.

At the time of the preparation of the bulletin there were 156 schools affiliated with the University. Of these 156 schools, 108 have at least 14 units of credit, 41 have 11 or more units of credit, 7 have 7 1-2 and 11 units of credit. To say any of it and therefore become cheerful and philosophic about the deadly boredom of living, he was prepared to produce humorous comments and glibly under the tongue or the sun itself, for that matter. Not knowing where he was going, nor why, but seeing clearly that the brakes will not work and the coming tower and the rudder is always uncertain in the ship of human destiny, he was not prone to worry about the little affairs of this day which men call serious. Altogether he was an ideal member.

In this Bulletin, Thomas Fletcher,

assistant visitor of schools says:

Within the scholastic year, 1911-12, 10 new schools secured original affiliation, while four schools lost all affiliation. There have been graded during the year 146 units to schools already affiliated. These units have been distributed among 78 schools. To the 10 new schools affiliated there were granted 112 units. The total number of units granted for the year was 252.

There is a growing demand for the vocational credits. Credit has been granted 8 times in Domestic Science, 5 times in Manual Training, and 4 times in Agriculture. These subjects are, as yet, unorganized, there is no standard procedure in teaching, and the supply of teachers who have been trained to do this work. Because of these difficulties credit has been refused in several cases. The great value of the vocational training is recognized, and it is highly desirable that the courses should be organized and made strong. These courses should not be "snaps," but should require effort on the part of the student if they are to be of value.

Cheap Teachers Not Competent.

A number of weak schools have bright prospects for next year. School boards of realizing that they can not secure competent teachers for $40 or $45 per month. Towns are being convinced that standard high school work is impossible with cheap teachers and poor equipment. Many schools are looking toward affiliation next year. These schools have improved their condition by adding to their equipment and strengthening their teaching force. Many schools have a fairly strong faculty, but are seriously handicapped for want of a library. School authorities need to begin the work of building up libraries in the high schools. High school teachers need to make more use of the books available in their schools.

A rich program of studies is a most desirable thing for any high school; but it is decidedly poor policy to increase the electives offered, when it results in forcing the teachers to teach seven or eight recitations per day. The small school must, of a necessity, limit the scope of its work. It is not advisable to increase the credits of a school in which the teachers conduct eight recitations each per day.

The superintendent is constrained by a number of schools due to the ambition of the superintendent to increase the number of entrance credits, have weakened their work by adding subject matter to their program of studies. It must again be emphasized that the number of entrance credits does not determine the strength of the school. Indeed, sometimes a long list of entrance credits may indicate a weak school, especially if the faculty is small and overtaxed. A friendly rivalry among the secondary schools that makes the school authorities ambitious to improve the schools is a thing to be desired; but an ambition on the part of school authorities to increase the number of entrance credits at the expense of overtaxing the high school teacher and thus weakening the work all along the line is to be deplored.

NATIONAL CLUB START DISPUTE

PRESIDENT OF PHILADELPHIA TEAM CALLED UPON TO PROVE CHARGES.

ALLEGES UMPIRES ARE UNFAIR

Fogel Credited With Starting Rumor of Framup for New York to Win This Year.

New York, Oct. 17.—Formal charges against Horace Fogel, president of the Philadelphia National league club, based on his alleged assertions that umpires had favored the New York club and that this year's race had been fixed for that club to win, were ordered drawn at a special meeting here today of the National League of Baseball Clubs.

Mr. Fogel will be given an opportunity to substantiate statements published over his signature, accusing certain umpires of unfairness.

The charges also will include statements which President Fogel is alleged to have made at the Philadelphia baseball park in the last series played there with the New York team, an accusation alleged to have been made that the manager of the St. Louis club weakened his team by playing substitutes so the New York club could win, and charges made by William Brennan, an umpire, whose fairness was said to have been impugned by Mr. Fogel.

Lynch Expresses Views.
"If he can prove that the National league race was crooked this year and that the umpires or the president of the National league were parties to it," said President Lynch in a statement to the meeting, "then the umpires should be discharged and blacklisted from ever taking part in organized ball, and the president of the league should step down and out of his position in disgrace."

"On the other hand, if these charges cannot be proved, then it is up to the National league to pass legislation preventing this man from representing any league club in any capacity. I respectfully ask this before you gentlemen and ask your wish as to procedure in this case."

John A. Heydler, secretary of the league, was directed to present the charges to President Fogel within five days and Mr. Fogel was given five days additional to draw up his answer. The league will meet here Tuesday, Nov. 26, to hear Mr. Fogel's defense and take action in the matter.

Thomas J. Lynch, president of the league, presided at today's meeting. After some discussion as to the procedure to be followed, it was decided that the charges against Mr. Fogel be formulated and he be given a hearing on November 24.

Umpires William F. Brennan, Charles Riegler, William Klem and Al Orth were all in attendance at today's meeting, but were not called upon to testify.

RED SOX CELEBRATE

MARCH THROUGH STREETS AS THOUSANDS OF ADMIRERS CHEER LUSTILY.

Mayor of Boston Lauds Them as the "Greatest Nine Ever"—Scatter for the Winter.

Boston, Oct. 17.—A triumphant march through crowded streets and a mass meeting of congratulation at Faneuil hall closed for the season today the activities of the Red Sox, the new world's champions as a baseball team.

After they had been lauded as the "greatest nine ever" by Mayor Fitzgerald and the thousands who had been applauded by several thousand fans, the players dispersed, not to meet again as an organization until next year.

Hunting trips are included in the immediate plans of nearly all of the members of the team. "Bill" Currier will entertain a small party at his Maine hunting camp.

Within a few days the players will receive checks for their individual share of the world's series receipts. They will net more than $1,000 each, a greater sum than the salary of many of them.

BLACK PRIZE FIGHTER QUIZZED

Jack Johnson Questioned About Disappearance of Girl, 19, Who Worked for Him in Cafe.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—For over an hour today the police questioned Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, regarding the whereabouts of Lucile Cameron, 19, who disappeared from the girl's mother, Mrs. E. Cameron-Falconette, of Minneapolis, had asked the police to search.

The pugilist admitted the girl had been employed in his cafe as cashier, but refused to tell her present address, although he said he knew where she was. He pleaded that Miss Cameron was anxious to avoid further publicity of the recent suicide of his wife, Miss Cameron, he said, had been a companion to his wife.

The girl left my employ recently to seek other employment," said Johnson. "I positively denied he has the young woman in hiding."

Johnson appeared before Chief of Police McVeeny. He said that Mrs. Falconette had communicated with him and told him not to "pay any attention to her daughter." Johnson said he assured her "there was no cause for her worry."

Lucile Cameron, the 17-year-old white girl, daughter of Mrs. Cameron-Falconette, of Minneapolis, whose relations with Jack Johnson, the negro heavy weight pugilist, were explained today to Chief of Police McVeeny by the pugilist.

The pugilist was taken into custody tonight after she had refused to leave her companion in Chicago and accompany her mother to Minneapolis.

"I cannot go back and I don't want to go back to Minneapolis," she told police Captain Neider. "I expect to become the wife of Mr. Johnson, shortly, although he has not proposed marriage in Chicago," declared the girl.

At this announcement Mrs. Falconette wept hysterically. Later Johnson visited the police station with an attorney and attempted to talk with the girl but was denied permission to see her.

Makes Dramatic Appeal.
Earlier in the day Mrs. Falconette made a dramatic appeal to the police to find her daughter. She told of her failure to get her away from the influence of the negro. She described her anguish when she learned last Friday that her daughter was a frequent of Johnson's cafe.

Johnson's interview with the pugilist who she declared insulted her and flouted her plea that he give up the girl. Johnson she said, told her he could "get" any woman he wanted.

"Then I telephoned the pugilist. He said he would send an automobile for me. When his automobile arrived he was in it himself, although he said it would be empty. When I entered the machine I drew down the shades so as not to be seen. This nettled him."

"Oh some of the best white women in Chicago ride in this car," is what he said to me.

"I begged Johnson to give my daughter up. He said he would not and leered in my face."

"We rode to a home on Sheridan Road where Lucile was staying. She wept and told me she had come too far to go back. I left her undecided. Finally she came to my hotel. We talked of how she could become disengaged. I was convinced at the time that the negro had a hypnotic influence over her."

"She went down stairs to use the telephone, she said, and never returned. Johnson told me he would give every dollar he had to hold her."

Johnson made an absolute denial of unduly friendly relations with Miss Cameron, and that infatuation for the Cameron girl was one of the causes of the suicide recently of his wife. He declared the girl left her position as cashier in his cafe for another position and that his wife had never seen Miss Cameron.

BEDIENT'S START.

Pitched His First Game for $150 at Warrens, Pa.

Warren, Pa., Oct. 17.—Hugh Bedient the Red Sox twirler, made his first appearance in Warren with the Falconer high school team against the Warren Independents. Bedient attracted the attention of R. J. Shumaker, manager of the Warren team. Later when Shumaker booked two games with the Meadville Inter-Collegiate, he telephoned to Bedient.

"I have two games for today, but only one pitcher. I'll give you $1 and expenses to come and pitch the afternoon game."

"No," was the answer, "but make it $150 and I'll go."

That was the first game Bedient ever pitched for money and he won. Later he broke the record for strike outs, pitching a game of twenty-two innings at Cory in which twenty-four batters were struck out.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX WIN

Mattick's Three-Bass Hit in Ninth With Bases Full Saves His Team from Defeat.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—"Chick" Mattick of the Chicago American league today kept his club in the running for the city championship by driving out a triple with the bases full in the ninth inning. When he scored a moment later on an out, he brought defeat to the local National leaguers by a score of 8 to 5.

The spectacular finish was in keeping with the rest of the game. Zimmerman's hitting was responsible for four of the Cubs' tallies. His sacrifice scored Miller in the first; his home run brought himself and Tinker home in the fourth and his double came in the seventh after Miller's triple had sent good home.

For the Sox a wild pitch, followed by Schall's single sent Borton across the plate in the second. Then in the sixth Collins and Weaver were infected by Zimmerman's habits and each hit a home run. Borton having doubled, between these exploits.

The ninth inning started with the "Cubs" leading, but Richie was wild and two passes and a hit filled the bases. Lavender went in cold and Mattick's hit followed.

A. & M. Has a Game Saturday, and Is Getting Ready for It.

College Station, Oct. 17.—The second football game of the season for A. & M. College will be played here tomorrow, when the Farmers meet the eleven from Trinity University. Wet weather has interfered somewhat with the practice this week, but the men have kept in condition by running signals and practicing formations in the gymnasium when the rain prevented outdoor work.

Miller at guard, and Montgomery at end. The Farmers are confident of victory tomorrow, word comes from Waxahachie that Coach Day is developing a fast team and expects to spring a surprise on Moran's huskies.

The first big contest of the season for A. & M. comes on October 26 at the Dallas fair, when the team meets the eleven from the University of Kansas. The game is one of the heaviest on the schedule, and will undoubtedly be hard fought. Moran expects to have his men in the best of condition for the contest.

WITNESSES RELATE SCENE AT GRABOW WHEN MEN WERE KILLED.

Much Testimony Is Directed Against Emerson, President of Brotherhood of Timber Workers.

Lake Charles, La., Oct. 17.—Witnesses for the state in the Grabow labor riot case today testified that President A. L. Emerson of the Brotherhood of Timber Workers, one of the defendants, urged his followers in a speech July 3 at Ferryville, four days before the battle, to join in a body to Grabow and "show these scabs" what unionism is.

Testimony also was secured by way of corroborating witnesses yesterday that the first shot in the riot was fired from the crowd that surrounded the wagon whereon President Emerson stood while making his labor speech in front of the Galloway mill, the scene of the battle.

W. I. Hickman, who testified that Edward Ezell, one of the defendants was the man who wounded him in the riot, was not shaken in his story under cross-examination.

George Henry Blackman, who said he saw the battle begin, testified that men around Emerson's wagon were armed with rifles, shotguns and pistols, and that the first shot came from within five feet of the wagon. He said he saw Ezell shoot and at the same time saw Martin drop dead. He found Hickman, he testified, lying on the ground wounded. He did not see Chatham standing by Ezell.

Mrs. C. P. Davis, a boarding house keeper, testified that from her gallery she saw the crowd gathered in front of the wagon, and that nearly all of them were armed. She ran indoors, she said, when the shooting began.

Mrs. Emma Smith, after corroborating testimony that the first shot had been fired from near Emerson's wagon, testified that one man standing up in the wagon had a gun and that he said: "We are going to shoot these scabs."

When someone spoke up from the crowd asked him "How" the witness testified that he replied: "With the muzzle of this gun." She testified that the shooting then began.

MAJORITY TELL OF ROTS FAVOR BOND ISSUE

SPEAKERS AT THE GOOD ROADS CONVENTION TELL HOW IT SHOULD BE.

Dallas, Oct. 17.—"Good Roads" Day was duly celebrated Thursday morning by a program of speeches carried out in Convention Tent No. 1, Judge O. E. Dunlap, president of the Texas Good Roads' association, presided over the meeting and the address, as did Homer D. Wade, field secretary for the Texas Commercial Secretaries' association.

Majority Versus Two-Thirds.
Judge Dunlap urged that bond issues for good roads should pass by a majority of the property tax payers, instead of by a two-thirds vote, as now required. He earnestly advocated the importance of having a public highway engineer who shall co-operate with county officers in laying out and building good roads. The speaker declared that the press of the state has been a potent factor in aiding the cause of good roads, and that, after bonds have been voted to improve highways, an intelligent supervision of the work is a vital necessity.

Selling Bonds.
The speaker said he had been informed that some commissioners' courts pay the contractor in road bonds, he, in turn, selling the bonds at less than par. If this be true, he declared it a bad practice. He believes, he said, that there are no better securities than road bonds.

The facts that some counties are confronted by the lack of proper material for building roads might be obviated by the state establishing crushing camps in localities where material could be found at the lowest cost. He favored making these camps permanent.

Speaking of Ellis county, he said that the aggregate bond issues in the nine districts total $88,000 and that out of this fund 250 miles of good pikes have been finished. The total miles of servicable pikes will reach 300, he said. He gave figures to prove how much good this meant to Ellis county.

Reaching to the Moon.
Commenting on the vital importance to the farmer of good pikes, especially in Texas, where the farmer must haul his stuff to the local market, Homer Wade declared that good roads will permit of this being done with the least possible cost to the producer. He said, furthermore, that Texas farmers ship to foreign factories approximately a million and a quarter of raw material each day, hauling it an average distance of five miles over dirt roads.

"These products in a year will make a procession that will reach to the moon," he said.

Of 140,000 miles of highway in the state, only 3.3 per cent are improved. The speaker, contrasting this condition with better conditions in certain Eastern states.

The year 1911, he said, has been a banner year in bond series for good roads. In 1911 a total of $3,915,000 was voted for better highways, he said. Bonds for good roads voted in 1912 have so far reached the sum of $4,173,700, of which $2,731,200 have been carried he said.

Reasons for Failure.
The speaker gave as a reason for the failure of some good road bond issues lack of proper understanding between the rural and urban citizenship, a lack of educational work and well defined plans and the present road law, requiring a two-thirds majority of the taxpaying voters.

The speaker urged the necessity of a state highway commissioner who will have entire supervision of the public road system of the state.

Elbert Hubbard

AT THE AUDITORIUM

Monday Night, October the 21st

This life is full of gladness, and mayhap it is the gateway to another; and to live well here is surely the best preparation for a life to come. God is good and we are not afraid.—Elbert Hubbard.

Whenever any good comes our way, let us enjoy it to the fullest and then pass it along in another form.—Elbert Hubbard.

By right thinking does the race grow . . . The man that endures is the man that wins . . . To be deceived by a man is not so bad as to distrust him . . . To repeat an untruth is just as bad as to invent a lie . . . All there is of life is do our work (which is only play) as well as we can and be kind . . . If there is any better way to teach virtue than to practice it, I do not know it.—Elbert Hubbard. Speak today what you think is true, and contradict it all tomorrow if necessary.—Elbert Hubbard.

A MAN WHO CAN BRING OUT IDEALS AS HIGH AS THESE IS WORTH HEARING. SECURE A TICKET AND HEAR THE WISDOM OF ELBERT HUBBARD AT FIRST HAND.

If there is any living writer who deals with life with the same courage, faith and hope that Elbert Hubbard reveals, we do not remember his name. Hubbard is a teacher of the people who teach. He supplies texts for many sermons—where his name is never mentioned; he suggests thoughts for editorial writers and gives to many an essayist his needed initial impulse. Hubbard's influence is strongest among people who play big parts upon life's stage.

THE PEOPLE OF AMERICA'S FOREMOST CITIES CROWD THEIR THEATERS AND PUBLIC LECTURE HALLS TO HEAR HUBBARD—HE IS TO APPEAR MONDAY NIGHT AT THE AUDITORIUM FOR THE FIRST TIME IN WACO—HIS SUBJECT HERE "THE ROMANCE OF BUSINESS," IS CONCEDED HIS CROWNING SUCCESS.

"DARKHORSE WAS INTERESTS PLAN"

LAWSON SO DECLARES WHEN TESTIFYING BEFORE CAMPAIGN FUND COMMITTEE.

DEMOCRATS WIN, HE SAYS

Declares Scheme to Deadlock Baltimore Convention Failed—Probers Hear a Protest.

Washington, Oct. 17.—"The sinister system," formed a deep-laid plot to control the present presidential election, Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, told the senate campaign contributions committee today.

Mr. Lawson was chief to impress upon the committee that he knew, only in a general way, of the alleged colossal scheme to nominate and elect a candidate "satisfactory to Wall street interests."

All of his testimony was on matters which he knew in a general way and in a heated conversation he earnestly informed the committee that the testimony of J. P. Morgan and other witnesses had been a joke.

Testifies "In a General Way."

Of the interests of which Mr. Lawson knew, in a general way, was the defeat of Colonel Roosevelt at the Chicago convention, the nomination of President Taft and the injection of Colonel Roosevelt into the campaign as a third party candidate, "to split the Republican party," all this without the knowledge or consent of Colonel Roosevelt. Then Mr. Lawson knew in a general way, a mysterious fund of $1,000,000 had been raised in Wall street to deadlock the Democratic convention at Baltimore, prevent the nomination of any candidate before the convention and to name a dark horse satisfactory to the "system" who was to be elected.

Scheme Fails, Lawson Says.

He communicated this information to Mr. Bryan, said Mr. Lawson, "and as a result Mr. Wilson was nominated and the scheme failed."

Frank A. Munsey, who preceded Mr. Lawson argued at length with the committee against the publicity of campaign funds, declaring it was necessary that rich men contribute and that such publicity as the present investigation had enforced had "frozen up" the pocket books of the wealthy.

He outlined his own expenses in the Roosevelt pre-convention campaign fund, amounting to more than $118,000 and told the committee that, compared to the amount he has reported to have contributed the real figures made him "look like a piker." He estimated the total expenditure of the Roosevelt pre-convention campaign at $574,000.

Money Used Lavishly, Charged.

Before Mr. Lawson and Mr. Munsey took the stand, the committee heard James O. Murphy of Detroit, who declared that the recent primaries in the city were "rotten—the worst we ever had." He charged that money was used lavishly, and that delegates were "bought like sheep."

George B. Cortelyou, chairman of the Republican campaign committee in 1904 was called. He gave the committee his recollection of the so-called Standard Oil contribution of $100,000, which John D. Archbold testified he gave to the Roosevelt fund that year.

Mr. Cortelyou said that when President Roosevelt demanded that when Standard Oil money he returned he was told by C. N. Bliss, the treasurer that no contribution had been received from the company.

Recalls Bliss' Words.

The witness said he had a vague recollection that Mr. Bliss said something to the effect that "no questions should be asked to individual contributions," and that after the election Mr. Bliss had said something to him about a contribution by H. H. Rogers of the Standard Oil company which he said may have been the Archbold money.

The committee went after Mr. Lawson's conspiracy story rather sharply and endeavored in vain to pin him down to a statement of his basis for the recital. He said he had private means of information, many of them confidential and finally informed the committee that when a bit of information known to him he took particular pains to arrange matters so he might not know the exact source of the information.

Senators Question in Vain.

This rather took the committee off its feet and the senators questioned in vain in an effort to get specific information from the witness.

He said in an effort to defeat the "system" plan he had financed a $100,000 independent advertising campaign in behalf of Colonel Roosevelt in the hope that he could be nominated on the Republican ticket and elected.

Heated Arguments Follow.

Senator Pomeroy and the witness became involved in a heated argument when the senator demanded Lawson's authority for his statement regarding the $1,000,000 raised to control the Baltimore convention. Mr. Lawson said he believed that inquiry was not within the committee's jurisdiction.

"Do you understand the scope of this committee's power and authority?" demanded Senator Pomeroy.

Chair is Pounded.

The witness half rose and pounded his clenched fists on the arms of his chair. He glared at the four men behind him, then, shouted: "I don't think I could misunderstand the scope of this committee's work so far. I've read the record. I understand what J. P. Morgan and the other men of his class have been compelled to answer."

"I don't believe this committee should seize upon me just because I am on the side of the people against these men."

"Oh yes, I understand these things. With all deference to the committee, the testimony of all these men before the committee has been regarded as a joke."

Mr. Lawson testified that he knew "in a general way" of contributions to the fund of Alton B. Parker in 1904, amounting to from $500,000 to $700,000 made by the Standard Oil group. He said after a lengthy explanation, his information on this point came partly from conversations with the late H. H. Rogers of the Standard Oil company.

Defends "General Way."

"This investigation," said Mr. Lawson, "seems to be a matter of passing the buck up to dead men. I don't like to do it, but I guess I'll have to."

In defining his "general way" of knowing things, Mr. Lawson said: "I am in the public statement business. All I know is in a general way, I sometimes say I know, in a public statement when I think I know. When I say I think, I usually guess."

As the last witness of the day, the committee heard John McCall, secretary of the New York Life Insurance company, who placed in the record the widely published story of the $48,700 contribution by the New York Life to the Republican fund in 1904 in connection with which George W. Perkins was indicted in New York.

ARMIES, BALKAN WAR MAY MOVE

BULGARIA, SERBIA, GREECE AND MONTENEGRO HAVE UNITED FORCE OF 630,000 MEN.

TURKS STRENGTH IS GREAT

Just to What Extent They Are Prepared for Modern Warfare Is Not Definitely Known.

The plan of invasion and the powers of the armies of the Balkan states and Turkey have been discussed much recently, more so since Montenegro declared war against Turkey.

A summary of the forces at the disposal of the allies is as follows:

	Population.	Strength
Bulgaria	4,328,198	235,000
Serbia	2,911,761	175,000
Greece	2,611,952	170,000
Montenegro	250,969	20,000
Totals	10,122,761	620,000

Against this force is Turkey with 2,000,000 people and 1,000,000 soldiers. But it should be remembered that of these 2,000,000 there are but 600,000 in Europe, and that of these not more than one-third are Turks.

The Turks are outnumbered by the Albanians and Greeks. Besides there must be considered the large population of Serbs, Bulgars, Rumanians, Maygays, Gypsies, Jews, Christians and Armenians. It Turkey in Europe stood alone the conquest by the allies might be an easy matter, but across the Bosphorus there are the great Asiatic possessions to draw from.

No one has ever doubted the valor and the resourcefulness of the Turkish army. It has invariably given a good account of itself even when fighting under the disadvantages of poor commissary and insufficient clothing and arms.

The Young Turks have, under the able leadership of such men as Mahmud Sherket Pasha, made wonderful advances in organization and discipline. Just how thoroughly this new order of things is prepared them for modern warfare remains a question. Military authorities who have studied the soldiers both in Macedonia and around Adrianople have differed much in opinion. By some it is held that the Turkish army is in a general way, well prepared for the field, while by others the apparent lack of preparation seems to be compensated for by the wonderful military instinct of the men.

The full strength of the Turkish army will not appear so quickly as that of the allies, since complete mobilization will include the transportation of the troops from Asia Minor. The army is now fairly well paid, and will be comfortably clothed and fed. It has recently been considerably strengthened in the artillery divisions, one of the first acts of the new Young Turk government having been the purchase of several field batteries for use along the northern border.

The army that Turkey would put in the field in a war today would have in it an entirely new element from her armies of the past. Until the revolution of four years ago only Mohammedans fought under the colors. Under the constitution Moslems and Christians alike must do military service. Until now very few Christians, however, have been called out, but in the present emergency it is said that all men, regardless of their faith, will be conscripted.

WACO IS SATISFIED

RAILROADS HAVE WITHDRAWN THE RATE FAVORING PEDDLER CARS.

Traffic Manager Dillard Advises the Commission That Protest Can Be Stricken From the Docket.

Railroad companies entering Waco, have, without an exception, withdrawn the 25-cent freight rate heretofore permitted, which has been objectionable to local jobbers and merchants, because it allowed the operation of peddler cars. The announcement of the withdrawal rate is accompanied also by the withdrawal of the "5,000 pound lot shipments," which also was one of the objections to the local men.

With the receipt of these announcements Traffic Manager Dillard of the Waco Freight Bureau, addressed a letter to the state railroad commission in which he asks for a withdrawal of the complaint filed by the freight bureau.

The complaint had been made to voice the "Waco merchants' objections" and the state commission had arranged for a hearing Oct. 22. There is no doubt that the suit will not be removed from the docket.

With the action of the railroads, Waco merchants have won their every contention and demand. One of the objections was in regard to the banana cars which, under the 25-cent freight rate, could be operated from station to station and sidetracked until the "traveling merchant" could unload his product. This now is prohibited, but three stops being permitted within a radius of seventy-five miles, and at the regular freight rate. The fight to gain such a ruling has been a long one and has necessitated much time to accomplish.

PASSENGER MEN MAY GATHER

Association Invited to Meet in Galveston Next September.

Members of the Transcontinental Passenger association, living in the West or South, are making an effort to bring the next quarterly meeting of that organization to Texas.

Already the Southwestern Passenger association and its sister organization, the Southeastern Passenger association, have decided to hold their next quarterly meeting in Galveston some time during September and it is hoped to bring the Transcontinental to the Gulf city at the same time.

The meeting of these three associations in Galveston at the same time probably would be the most notable gathering of traffic men ever held in the South. It will be the first time the Transcontinental has ever met in Texas and the second time in the South.

ROAD INSPECTED.

International Association Members Travel From Kansas to Texas. Wichita Falls, Oct. 17.—John C. Nicholson of Newton, Kan., secretary of the International Meridian Road Association, and F. J. Gentry, also a representative of the association, accompanied by a party of local citizens, left early this morning for Fort Worth, via Jacksboro and Weatherford. They arrived at Jacksboro at noon today.

The party reached here late yesterday evening from Newton, crossing Red River over the Burk Burnett bridge. They were well pleased with the crossing and the road from Burk Burnett to Wichita Falls.

They addressed a meeting last night at which a Meridian Road association was formed. The party started from Canada.

MAYOR TWICE ARRESTED.

Minister Also Is Arrested Because of Street Speaking. Little Falls, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Mayor George Lunn of Schenectady, was again arrested today and his wife was escorted to police headquarters after they attempted to address the textile strikers.

The police made several other arrests, including Robert A. Balkman, a former clergyman of Schenectady, who was taken as he was in the act of reading aloud from the Bible.

The crowd was finally dispersed after Sheriff Moon had read the riot act.

SWINE BREEDERS CONVENE.

Members of Texas Association Hold Annual Meeting. Dallas, Oct. 16.—The Texas Swine Breeders' Association elected officers at their annual meeting at 3 o'clock today at a meeting which was held in the Swine building. They also discussed the time and place of the winter's meeting. This was left to the directors who will decide the time and place. Other matters were discussed that were of interest to the hog breeders.

Judge Lovejoy, the official of the swine show at the Fair, was in attendance and made an address to the members present, of which there were about one hundred.

Bulletin on Canning Fruits. Austin, Oct. 17.—The Texas Department of Agriculture has received from the printer and has ready for free distribution a bulletin on "Canned Fruits and Vegetables: Home and Commercial Canning," written by J. S. Magee of Tyler, Texas.

Commissioner Kone says: "The need of an adequate bulletin on subjects treated by this monograph is obvious. The extent to which it meets that need is the measure of its merit and of the degree of service rendered by the author in preparing it (at my request) and by the Texas Department of Agriculture in publishing it."

"While it is brief, I believe that it is to the point and that it embodies knowledge of practical value, learned by experience, and if the directions it contains are followed, thousands of dollars of fruit that would otherwise have been a total loss will be made to bring cash to the grower and health and pleasure to the consumer, and Texas takes a long and strong stride forward and upward on the path of economic progress."

From spruce wood pulp a French inventor has made a fabric resembling cotton and equally capable of bleaching and dyeing.
